The Culford Lantern

We have recently manufactured and installed one of our popular Culford Lanterns for a private client.

The lantern is an exact replica of an original lantern (circa 1800) that hung in the staircase of Culford School (located in the originally known Culford Hall), Bury St Edmunds. The design of the mansion during the Georgian period was attributed to James Wyatt.

Gothic and neoclassical elements that the popular but sometimes controversial, architect was known for can be seen in the metal castings on the lantern all of which are coloured to an antique lacquered brass finish.

12 lights fill the substantially sized lantern (Height 124cm Width 74cm), however they can contain more or less bulbs depending on your preference as each one is made to order at our workshops in Kent.

Interesting Fact

Did you know that Baccarat got its name from the village on the banks of the Meurthe River in France, it was initially named the Sainte-Anne glassworks when it was established in 1764.

Baccarat Installations

Although we are not a supplier of Baccarat chandeliers we are experienced installers in a range of their lighting products. Whether you have just purchased a new piece from their range or you are moving property and wish to take the fitting with you, we are skilled in packing and unpacking the pieces.

New Baccarat pieces are wrapped very well and the boxes often contain a large amount of packaging material, if it is more convenient we can also arrange the disposal of this for you

Pictured is the popular Baccarat Mille Nuits chandelier of which we have regularly installed.
